Personal snapshot:

Andrew's territory at Electus covers the "flashy" end of the spectrum where students are given the keys to unleashing creativity and colour. From simple websites to eye-catching illustrations, Andrew's students always surprise him with their spontaneous outbreaks of inspiration. Andrew nurtures this creative frenzy by drawing upon his vast experience in project management in the design industry. He says the challenge is to arm artists with tried-and-true design principles so that their ideas and visions can blossom and not fall victim to the crushing pressures of the workplace.

Insider Tip:

Make sure you ask Andrew as many questions as you can during his courses because there is a depth of knowledge in his head that goes way beyond the notes he has been able to capture in the course booklets.
